Methodology and Scope

Provider and universe. This report uses provider-native Yahoo daily bars from active YAHOO listings only. Inactive listings are excluded from pages, tables, annotations and coverage counts.

Date alignment. Every displayed observation has a stored trading date exactly equal to the report date. The report does not carry an earlier close forward across holidays or missing provider observations.

Daily performance. Change is the report-date close minus the latest preceding stored close for the same Yahoo listing. Percentage change divides that difference by the preceding close. A reported first observation can therefore have no prior comparison.

Unavailable states. Market Closed means the authoritative calendar has no session for the date. Not Yet Eligible means the configured publication time had not passed when the report was generated. No Data means an eligible date had no stored Yahoo bar, or its configured calendar could not be resolved.

Continuous futures. Futures rows represent provider-native continuous contracts rather than a specific deliverable contract. They can include provider roll behavior and are not adjusted into a custom Empire continuous series.

Interpretation. The document is descriptive research, not investment advice. Cross-market returns reflect distinct local sessions, currencies, calendars and publication conventions.
